Infectious Teamwork: An interprofessional panel discussion on COVID-19 Part 2

The Center for Interprofessional Education (CIPE) invites you to join us for a very special event in which some of the most intricately involved faculty members come together to speak about their professions' role and the interprofessional nuances of managing this COVID-19 crisis.

Erin Richards, DDS, Associate Director for CIPE, will facilitate a panel discussion with Ehren Ngo, MS; Brian Sharp, PhD; Ryan Sinclair, PhD, and Dustin Smith, MD for a robust discussion about their roles in patient care, how teamwork could improve and how this crisis may change the healthcare landscape.

Students, staff and faculty, alike, are welcome to tune in and be part of this discussion.

Ehren Ngo, MS
Emergency Operations Manager,
Environmental Health and Safety

Brian Sharp, PhD, CCC-SLP
Assistant Professor, Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders

Ryan Sinclair, PhD, MPH
Associate Professor, School of Public Health

Dustin Smith, MD, FACEP
Director, Medical Simulation Center,
Vice Chair, Academic Affairs, Department of Emergency Medicine
